Iridium Satellite Communications

IRIDIUM OVERVIEW

Handheld satellite phones and connected devices are designed to provide reliable communication links for users in locations where landline or mobile phone connections are unavailable, unreliable or overburdened.

Iridium features an amazingly intuitive user interface, making reliable communication more efficient than ever. With its fully meshed LEO (Low Earth Orbit) satellite network, Iridium provides voice and data solutions with complete global coverage – enabling you to connect from anywhere to everywhere with clear call quality and extremely low latency.
